

HUW EVANS

Huw Evans is a Partner and Head of Insurance at KPMG UK, bringing over two decades of experience across financial services, public policy, and industry leadership. Since joining KPMG in 2022, and taking on his current role in 2024, Huw has been at the forefront of advising clients on the most complex issues shaping the future of insurance, including regulation, digital transformation, and climate risk.

Prior to KPMG, Huw served as Director General of the Association of British Insurers (ABI) from 2015 to 2022, where he led the sector through major regulatory, political, and societal changes, including Brexit and the COVID-19 pandemic. His earlier roles at the ABI included Deputy Director General and Director of Operations. He also held senior positions in government, including Special Advisor roles at 10 Downing Street and the Home Office, and in the financial sector as Senior Manager for Group Strategy at RBS.

Beyond his executive leadership, Huw served as a Non-Executive Director at Flood Re, where he chaired the Remuneration Committee and contributed to the delivery of a world-first scheme to improve flood insurance availability and affordability.

Huw is a committed advocate for gender balance and inclusive leadership. As an Ambassador for ISC Group, he actively supports its mission to drive sustainable change and champion the advancement of women in the insurance industry.
