

DAME INGA BEALE

Dame Inga Beale is a distinguished British businesswoman with over four decades of experience in global financial services. Renowned for her visionary leadership and commitment to innovation, she has been a driving force in transforming organisations and fostering inclusivity within the workplace.

From 2014 to 2018, Inga served as the CEO of Lloyd's of London, becoming the first woman to hold this prestigious position in the institution's 330-year history. During her tenure, she led significant modernisation initiatives and championed diversity, making Lloyd's a more inclusive and forward-thinking organisation.

In recognition of her contributions to the UK economy, as well as her advocacy for women in business and the LGBTQ+ community, Inga was awarded a Damehood in 2017. Her work has inspired countless individuals, solidifying her reputation as a speaker, mentor, and role model for inclusion and innovation.

As an ISC Ambassador, Dame Inga continues to champion gender equity and leadership excellence in the re/insurance sector, supporting a global community dedicated to shaping a more inclusive and dynamic industry.
